EMPLOYMENT LAW E-BULLETIN - February 2025

Welcome to our February e-bulletin. We start this month with a look at what to expect from the new right to neonatal leave and pay which is coming into force on 6 April. We also take a look at two recent employment tribunal decisions dealing with neurodiversity in the workplace, an issue that is increasingly coming before the employment tribunals with some very high awards being made. We will be focusing on neurodiversity in an upcoming Essential Employment Law webinar - see webinar section below for further details. Like employment law, business immigration law is a fast-changing area and this month immigration law specialist Stuart McWilliams looks at what organisations can expect in 2025.

Our next Essential Employment Law Webinar is on 6 February and looks at the day 1 rights that will be brought into force by the Employment Rights Bill with a focus on unfair dismissal. For details on how to book for this and our other upcoming webinars please see below.

PREPARING FOR THE BILL: TEN PRACTICAL STEPS

Our practical half-day training course on the Employment Rights Bill is continuing to attract a lot of interest from employers. This training course is aimed at HR and business leaders and will explain the 10 practical steps that we consider employers can take now in order to prepare for the new legislation, as well as the new ethnicity and disability pay reporting requirements expected within the Equality (Race and Disability) Bill.

This training course will be tailored specifically to your organisation and we will take a deep dive into the detail of the key reforms proposed within the Employment Rights Bill that are most important to you, as well as clarifying the expected timings so that you can prioritise the changes which will likely be introduced first.

To enquire about this training course, including cost, please get in touch with your usual MFMac contact or email innes.clark@mfmac.com. We can deliver this training in-person or online for your organisation.
